This is a reminder that in the future (think weeks, not months), it will no longer be possible to modify cactbot files directly for your customization. For example, if you have TEA changes, it will no longer be possible to directly modify the `cactbot/ui/raidboss/data/05-shb/ultimate/the_epic_of_alexander.js` file with your changes and have this job. The recommended path is to change to `cactbot/user/directory` as per this documentation. This is partly due to #1869, but also because of the future plan to get rid of the cactbot plugin and have `OverlayPlugin` is the only plugin you need where cactbot will be hosted only remotely. Any of these changes will not help you make direct changes to local files. So this is your warning that direct file modification is not supported, and will not be possible in the future. Check out this documentation on how to use `cactbot/user/directory` to customize cactbot. Future groundbreaking changes for developers cactbot will move to Webpack and ESM modules. See the #1869. If you write toggles that depend on cactbot JavaScript code, please chime there so that I can understand how your process looks and how to keep your code working. If you contribute to kaktobot, subscribe to this problem as well. Changes in this release: raidboss fix browser tts for non-English languages A8N triggers and timelines (#1824) posts: many new UIs from @Echoring plugin: just reload to file changes if developer options are enabled (to troubleshoot update problems, Part Infinity)
